FN flush-pro

The profile that is flush with the plaster.

In order to be able to place furniture completely against the wall, it is practical if everything on that wall is flush. The plaster-flush skirting board can do that. The strip is made of aluminium and is fitted before the wall is plastered. After plastering, a cavity remains in the base area. This cavity is used when laying the floor to accommodate the floor expansion joint. The cavity can then either be filled with a floor section or with two different cover profiles: one profile covers the entire area from the plaster to the floor, the other profile leaves an opening on the lower edge of the plaster into which an LED strip, for example, can be glued.

Product advantages:

- 3 wall connection options: insert floor strips or two different covers.
- 2 different thicknesses available: 13mm and 15mm.
- Robust aluminium base profile.
- Furniture can finally be placed directly against the wall.
- It is no longer necessary to clean the skirting boards.
